Revolutionize Time Tracking for the Modern, Hybrid Workforce

In the fast-changing hybrid digital workplace, more organizations are building a working environment that prioritizes the employee experience, flexibility, and productivity. A recent *Gartner survey found an increase of 44% in using modern collaboration tools in the workplace in the last two years. We think this hints that organizations need to reimagine their technology platforms, embed innovation like AI/ML to their business processes and leverage the changes in the way employee productivity is measured over the next decade.

ZeroTime, the new revolution in time tracking by Replicon, enables organizations to turn their workforce into a highly engaged workforce and reimagine the time tracking process, enhancing employee productivity and deeper customer engagement.
